SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists, spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,
And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.
Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.
J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.
P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

ROBERT EMORY PATTISON.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA.

There is a current saying that of a man it is asked in Boston, what does he know? in New York, what is he worth? in Philadelphia, who was his father? The personal character and official worth of our candidate alike invite inspection by any one or all of these tests.

ROBERT EMORY PATTISON, the only Democratic candidate for governor in Pennsylvania, and the one who proposes, when "chosen for the office by the people, to perform its duties to their satisfaction," was born on the 8th day of December, A. D. 1850, at Quantico, Somerset county, Md. For the place of his birth there is no apology needed further than that he "had to be born somewhere," as Andrew Jackson, of Tennessee, said of himself, in answer to a taunt that Waxhaw, North Carolina, was his own humble birth place, itself in name, like Pattison's, suggestive of aboriginal origin. Indian names are numerous on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, which has also been called by a recent writer in Harper's Magazine, "A Peninsula Canaan;" "a land of rivers of waters." One of these gives name to the new county of Wicomico, set off from Somerset a few years ago, in which is located the little town of Quantico.

That was the first place to which the late Rev. Robert H. Pattison, D. D., for many years grand chaplain of the lodge of Masons in Pennsylvania, was appointed, after his marriage with Miss Catharine Woolford, of Cambridge, by the presiding bishop of the Philadelphia M. E. conference, which at that time included the peninsula within its bounds. A short time thereafter the father's appointment was to Odessa, Delaware, and next to Philadelphia when the first born son was but six years old.

HIS EDUCATION.

Robert was at once started to school, and, entering the primary, passed during the years following through the successive grades of the common schools, the glory of our commonwealth, on up to and through the Penn grammar and central high school. Here young Pattison made his first speech, being called upon to deliver the valedictory address, and graduating with the highest honors of the fifty fifth class. In this way he became known to Lewis C. Cassidy, esq., then a member of the board of education, in whose office he registered as a law student in December, 1869, with the recommendation of Professor George Inman Riche, the high school principal.

The elder Pattison had intended his son should graduate also at Dickinson college, where he himself had been educated, having named him in honor of one of the most honored presidents of that institution. Robert Emory was a native of Philadelphia, afterward a law student of Reverdy Johnson, in Baltimore, and in the end a divine of great learning and masterly in manhood. Such a man, too, was the senior Pattison, one whose knightly appearance and chivalric bearing co-existed with great kindness of manner, that made him friends in all classes of society, and caused him to be mourned in death—which came to him in 1875—wherever his personal and social worth were known. His solicitude for the future of his only son may be best expressed in words written by James Mill to Jeremy Bentham, with reference to his son, John Stuart Mill: "However, if I were to die anytime before this poor boy is a man, one of the things which would pinch me most sorely would be the being obliged to leave his mind unmade to the degree of excellence I hope for.

A STUDENT OF LAW.

Fortunately Dr. Pattison did live to see his son Robert apply himself not only to the mastery of law books in the office, but also after office hours at home, to general literature, and especially to the history of the old Feudal days; so familiarizing himself with the groundwork of his chosen profession, and at the same time keeping up with the times in his general reading during half holidays, and on his way to and fro. The father lived to see him a good student of human nature as well, using the ample opportunity Mr. Cassidy's large criminal practice afforded for this; and in every way at his command thoroughly qualifying himself for admission to the Philadelphia bar, where he entered upon the practice of law on his own account in 1872. That year the young lawyer was married to Anna, daughter of Edwin A. Smith, of Philadelphia, and settled down in the small two story house 3247 Sansom street, where he has continued to reside ever since, and where two children, a boy and a girl, have been born to them in their happy home.

From the age of seventeen, when he was already developed beyond his years, following in the footsteps of his grandfather on his mother's side, Col. Thomas Woolford, who commanded in the Maryland line in the Revolutionary war, Pattison had been a popular member of the Fourth Regiment Pennsylvania Militia, known as the Fire Zouaves, and he was subsequently identified with the reorganization of the State Fencibles.

LAWYER, ORATOR AND MILITIAMAN.

There he formed the friendship of that good old Democrat, "a man without fear and without reproach," Col. James Page, whom Pattison succeeded as president of the organization. He won his first laurels as a lawyer in an able argument in defense of some thirty militiamen of the 4th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, before a court assembled by General Prevost, and acquitted them on a plea as to jurisdiction. After this he was ever the chosen orator of the command, and never without clients. Among the cases which afterwards came to him and were prepared with the thoroughness which distinguished all of his professional and political work, were those of Orr vs. Hydraulic Works and Kehoe vs. same, leading cases in determining the law of negligence and the duties of property owners to the public.

Thus far the father lived to see the success of his son, who, with strong filial devotion, refusing to bask in other people's sunshine by acceptance of invitations to membership in the richer churches, has of preference rigidly adhered to a kind of "little church around the corner," wherein was his father's last ministry.

RECOLLECTIONS OF DICKINSON.

Previous mention of Dr. Pattison's early education in Dickinson College recalls a fact or two that may as well be put down right here in refutation of the assertion made here and there in certain stalwart organs, that "hitherto Pennsylvania has invariably elected governors born in the State." Now, to begin with, without hunting up the baptismal record of them all, John Dickinson, whose name that college bears, according to Jefferson "one of the most accomplished scholars the country ever produced," was himself a native of Maryland, lived for a long time in Delaware, and was in 1782 elected executive of Pennsylvania. And he was succeeded in the office of governor of Pennsylvania by Benjamin Franklin, who, until now when objection is made to the Providence that gave Pattison his birth in Maryland, was always supposed to have been born in Massachusetts, and to have walked from Boston to Philadelphia, whereunto Pattison was brought when barely old enough to walk to school, and where, ever since he was six years old he has been alike by his education, profession and public service a Pennsylvanian.

Surely the men who worked "like Beavers" to put Grant in nomination for a third term at a time when he had been altogether out of the country for four years, and who appiauded to the echo Coakling's exclamation "if it be asked whence comes our candidate, he hails from Appomatox" should not now make serious objection to the like Indian but less savage sounding Quantico, which Pattison bade "hail and farewell" by proxy, if at all, since he was removed from there before he could cleverly articulate. Nor is the Cameronian cry of "foreigner," against the city controller of Philadelphia, altogether consistent with even the old straight out and out Know Nothingism, which is sought to be rehashed, it seems, in the coming campaign, and to be served up with an new altogether infusion of a peculiar kind of state rights. And, what is more remarkable this, the whole and sole objection that has been raised against Controller Pattison as a man, originates at and is sent out from the head quarters of the Cameron State Central Committee, the chairman of which, and would like to have been candidate for governor, was himself born "out west" in Ohio.

A BROAD VIEW OF HIS DUTIES.

Had he done no more than guard the treasury as controller, had he been simply the passive obstruction to greed and corruption, he would yet have been entitled to the regard of all honest men. But he was much more than this. His conduct discloses a broad and comprehensive view of his duties. He did not content himself with keeping vigilant watch over the money. He strove to lower the high salaries of the city's employees. He was full of intelligent and economical suggestions upon the management of the municipal finances. He suggested to the board of revision of taxes the wisdom of a more correct assessment of the real estate. By a letter dated October 2, 1878, he advocated the payment of 4 per cent. interest on the city warrants after January 1, 1879, seeing that upwards of $50,000 a year would be saved. "I cannot see any good reason," he wrote, "why the city of Philadelphia, with its warrants 1½ per cent. above par, should continue to pay a greater interest than the general government." Many of the municipal reforms from which Philadelphia now reaps advantage were the results of his suggestions.

His first balance sheet was the first clear statement that Philadelphia had had for many years of its financial affairs. He awoke the citizens to a knowledge of the actual condition of their municipality. He exhibited the frightful tendency toward bankruptcy and disclosed to them that a false and misleading exhibit had been annually placed before them by carrying along worthless or unprofitable assets as cash.

It was these reforms which enabled the controller to say in his last annual report: "The burdens of the tax payers are being lightened, increased encouragement is given for the employment of capital within its limits, and an auspicious beginning has been made in freeing the second city of the Union in population, and the first in industrial enterprise, from taxation for indebtedness."

APPROVED BY THE PEOPLE.

It is no wonder, then, that his honorable and intelligent course disarmed prejudice, swept away the barriers of political feeling and evoked universal approbation. The common council, on December 18, 1879, passed a resolution of compliment to the controller. The tax payers of the Twentieth ward, in meeting assembled, adopted a resolution of thanks. Mr. George H. Earle, the distinguished lawyer, who for years had labored with a single hearted purpose in the cause of political reform, wrote him: "For yourself, I meet no honest man who does not wish to take you by the hand and thank you." The press of the city were unanimous and outspoken in their commendation. The Evening Telegraph said: "Robert E. Pattison is a man of the people, for the people, and in the end they will sustain him if they are worthy such a representative." The Times called on the Republicans to indorse Pattison and not make a nomination against him. The Ledger told Mr. McManes that if, as he said, he really wished a candidate who was the equal of Controller Pattison in ability, integrity and courage, to nominate Pattison himself.

In short, after four years of experience with him as controller the people re-elected him by 13,590 majority, though he was simply the Democratic candidate, there having been at that time no Committee of One Hundred organized for independent political action.

THE OFFICE OF CONTROLLER.

The year and half of his second term that has thus far passed has been replete with similar evidences of his comprehensive grasp of the duties of his position. The Philadelphia Star (Ind.), recently referring to his official career, thus sums up his services to Philadelphia:

"There was a time, and not very long since, either, when a great many people entertained the idea that the functions of the controller were of the simplest character—that he was, in fact, nothing more than a mere clerk, whose principal duty consisted in approving warrants drawn against the city treasury, which approval was given without investigation. When the present controller was renominated it was boldly declared by some of those opposed to him, that there were no duties connected with the office that could not be discharged by any one possessed with common intelligence, and that, therefore, the general popular demand for Mr. Pattison's re-election, was not warranted by the facts of the case. These declarations, strange as it may seem, were made by prominent lawyers and other citizens, supposed to be familiar with the work of the office, and from whom better things were expected. Since then the people have learned how absolutely essential to honest and economical government a capable and fearless controllership is. As at present administered, the office is a constant check, not only to dishonesty, but upon hasty or ill-advised legislation which involves the expenditures of public money. How many dollars of the public funds have been saved by the conscientiously careful investigation of the legal claim of every warrant to the controller's approval, can not be told, but it is safe to say that they approximate to millions. The law has been maintained with rigid impartiality, while favoritism has not in a single instance been charged. It may therefore be said with truth that as far as the outgo of public money is concerned, the controller is the most important officer connected with our municipal government, provided always he is the right man for the place. The wrong man there—and there have been wrong controllers—is an evil, the magnitude of which can be comprehended only by a comparison of the present management with that of five or six years ago."

The Philadelphia Times said that millions of dollars were stolen from the city treasury under Pattison's predecessors because they conducted the office of controller with the idea that the controller "does nothing more than approve city warrants, if they are drawn legally." Because Pattison took the higher view millions were saved to Philadelphia.

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR.

In view of all this and of the fact that during his term a complete administrative reform had been inaugurated in the second city of the union and the first in Pennsylvania, it was not strange that the Democratic State Convention found in him its nominee for governor. Year by year the political issue of administrative reform has become the supreme concern of intelligent men. Recognizing his special fitness to embody this issue, the convention gravitated toward him on the sixth ballot and without any adjournment after it began to ballot. His nomination was no personal nor factional triumph or defeat. It was accomplished without "management" or "trade." It was the well-considered action of an unusually earnest and intelligent body and that no mistake was made is assured by the universal approbation with which it has been received, not only by the party press of the State, but by all independent journals of any standing, while it has challenged the opposition press, and for many weeks has been almost absolutely free from unfavorable criticism from any source.

Possibly never before in the history of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania was a nomination ratified with such unanimity. From every quarter of the State this is the unvarying report, and present indications point to its ratification at the polls, not only by the largest vote ever polled for any candidate of the party in this State, but also by an increase upon that cast for Gen. Hancock by the addition of the suffrages of tens of thousands of Independent Republicans and conservative citizens who are willing to aid the election of an honest and capable man for governor, pledged by a platform which declares against the spoils system and bossism, for good government and an honest apportionment.

Why the Elephants' Hind Legs Bend Forward.

In connection with the employment of the elephant by man, there is an allegorical fable which, although it has probably no basis of fact, may possess a certain interest for those who are fond of investigating the reasons of things.

According to this story there was, at one time, a comparatively small number of elephants upon the earth, and these lived together in one great herd. They were quiet, docile animals, and did no injury to any one. They were formed, however, somewhat differently from the elephant of the present day. You may have noticed that the hind legs of these animals bend forward like the legs of a man, while the hind legs of nearly all other quadrupeds bend out backward. In the days of which this allegory tells, the elephant's hind legs were formed in the same way: they bent out backward like the legs of a dog, a horse, or a cow. The people in that part of the country where these elephants lived had no beasts of burden, or wagons, or carts, and they often thought what an excellent thing it would be if the great, strong elephants would carry them and their families about on their broad backs, or bear for them the heavy loads which they were often obliged to carry from place to place.

One day, several of the men saw the leader of the herd of elephants standing in the shade of a clump of trees, and they went to him to talk upon this subject. They told him of the difficulty they had in taking journeys with their wives and children, especially in the rainy season, when the ground was wet and muddy, and explained to him how hard it was for them to carry loads of provision and other things from one village to another.

"Now, twenty of these loads," said the spokesman of the men, "would be nothing for one of you to carry; and if one of us, and all his family, and even some of his household goods, were upon your great back, you could walk off with ease. Now, what we wish to propose to you is this: If some of your herd will consent to carry us when we wish to make a journey, and to bear about our heavy goods for us, we will give you grass, rice, and banyan-leaves and melons from our gardens, and such other things as may be proper, for your services. By this arrangement both sides will be benefited."

The elephant listened with great attention, and when the man had finished speaking he replied:

"Melons are very tempting, for these we seldom find in the forest, and fresh leaves from the luxuriant banyans which grow about your houses are highly attractive to elephants; but, in spite of the inducements you offer, there are objections to the plan you propose which will, I fear, prevent it from being carried out. If, for instance, one of your families wished to get upon my back, or if you desired to place a heavy load thereon, it would be necessary for me to lie down, wouldn't it?"

"Oh, yes," said the man.

"There comes in the difficulty," said the elephant. "Our bodies are so large and heavy that when we lie down it is as much as we can do to get up. Indeed, most of us prefer to sleep leaning against a tree, because when we lie down at night we often find in the morning that it is almost impossible for us to rise. Now, if we find it difficult to get up from the ground when we have nothing but ourselves to lift, it is quite plain that we could not rise at all if we had a load upon our backs. That is clear to your mind, is it not?"

"Yes," said the man, rather ruefully. "I see that what you say is true. You would be of no service to us if you could not get up after we had placed our loads upon your backs."

And he and his fellows returned sadly to their village.

But some of the people, when they heard this story, were not willing to give up the matter so easily. There was a witch of great wisdom who lived in the neighborhood, and they went and consulted her. She considered the matter for three days and nights, and then she told them that, if they would give her twenty pots of rice and a bronze gong, she would make it all right. The twenty pots of rice and the bronze gong were speedily brought to her; and that night, when the elephants were all fast asleep, she went to the place where they were lying on the ground, or leaning against the trees, and bewitched them. She managed her witcheries in such a way that the hind legs of the elephants all bent inward instead of outward, as they had done before.

When the head elephant awoke and walked from under the tree against which he had been leaning, he was very much surprised at the change in his gait. He shuffled along in a very different way from that in which he had always walked before.

"I feel as if I were all shoulders," he said to his wife.

"And well you may be," said she, "for your hind legs bend forward, exactly like your fore legs.

"And so do yours!" he cried, in utter amazement.

The elephants who were lying down were awakened by this loud conversation, and, noticing that many of their companions were moving about in a very strange way, thought it would be a good idea to get up and see what was the matter. To their astonishment they arose with great ease. Their hind legs were bent under their heavy bodies, and they were enabled to lift themselves up with what seemed to them no trouble at all.

When all this was made known to the men of the village, they immediately urged upon the head elephant that he and his companions should enter into their service. An elephant was thereupon ordered by his chief to lie down and be loaded, and when the men had tied an immense number of packages upon his back, he arose with apparent ease and shambled away.

There being now no possible objection to an elephant becoming a beast of burden, these great animals began to enter into the service of man. But many of them did not fancy labor, no matter how able they might be to perform it, and these separated from the main herd and scattered themselves over various parts of Asia and Africa, where their descendants are still found.

As has been said before, it is quite likely that his story may not be true; but still the facts remain that the elephant's hind legs bend forward just like his fore legs, and that he shambles along very much as if he were all shoulders.—John Lescos, in St. Nicholas for September.

Obliging a Preacher.

Just back of Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, while following the high way to reach Tunnel hill, I came across a little church half hidden in the woods. The building was primitive, and the old darkey who sat on a log by the door was more so. After I had made inquiries about the route and was ready to go on, he said:

"Better git down, boss, and come in to meetin.'

"Do you hold services this afternoon?"

"Yes, sah. We am gwine to open in 'bout five minits, an' I 'spects de sermon will be a powerful one."

It didn't seem just right to be riding around the country on Sunday, and so I got down and took a seat beside the old man. After a few minutes spent in general talk he said it was time to go in. I followed after him, and found myself the sole audience. I next found that he was the preacher who was to deliver the powerful sermon. He opened services in regular form and with all due solemnity, and then announced his text and began preaching. I stood it for fifty-five minutes, and then, as he had only reached "second G," I waited until he closed his eyes and then made a slide for the door. It was no go. I hadn't gone six feet before he stopped his sermon and asked:

"Stranger must you be gwine?"

"Yes I feel that I must."

"An' you can't heah the rest. ?"

"No."

"Den I'll chop off right whar' I is."

"Oh, don't do that. You can go on with your sermon just the same."

"But you see dar' mus' be a colleckshun tooken up arter de sermon," he protested in anxious tones. "If you'll obleege me by takin' a seat I'll sing a hymn an' pass de hat."

I sat down, and when he had red and sung a hymn, he passed the hat, transferred the quarter to his vest pocket, and observed as we went out:

"I didn't git down to de moas' powerful part of de sermon, but if you happen 'long dis way nex' Sunday I'll giv you de odder half. Dat quarter comes jist in time to encourage me to keep de good work bilin."—Detroit Free Press.

New and Stale Bread.

The famous Leipsic physician, Professor Reclam, in a late number of the Gesundheit, has ventured to say a good word on behalf of newly baked bread. The majority of old people, dyspeptics and hypochondriacs, he observes, say that they can only eat stale bread; they find new bread too indigestible. The virtue, he tells them, is not in the staleness of the bread, but in the care and thoroughness with which they are compelled to masticate it, on account of its hardness. The tongue not only deceives the human race in speaking, says the learned physician; it is a great deceiver in eating. As soon as the tongue perceives that any morsel in our mouth is soft and yielding, we are persuaded that it may safely be swallowed. No time or labor is spent upon its mastication. Hence so many people declare that sauerkraut soft cakes, pate de foie gras, eel, and other favorite delicacies of the Ten-ton, do not agree with them. The professor declares that none of these are actually indigestible in themselves. As with new bread, it is the ease with which they are swallowed which makes them indigestible. Stale bread and hard biscuit, on the other hand, are not of themselves inherently so very digestible; but they give the eater so much trouble to soften them that they are not swallowed until they have been reduced into a fit condition for that process. Hence the stomach has not that trouble with them which it almost invariably has with the softer and more delicate food which has never received more than two or three turns with the teeth. Rapid eating and insufficient chewing are the two worst foes of the majority of dyspeptics and hypochondriacs, says our authority, and he advises such persons to transfer to their own carelessness and illeness nine tenths of the blame which they are in the habit of laying upon their food or upon their cooks.

The average Washington claim agent is not a man to be disturbed by any scruples of conscience.

"You say you were wounded during the late war?"

"That's what I said," returned the applicant for a pension.

"Do you remember what year it was?"

"In 1864, I think."

"Where were you wounded?"

"In the wrist."

"Was it a minnie ball?"

"Not exactly. Her name was Minnie, but it was a corset bone that wounded me."

"All right," exclaimed the agent. "We'll call it a bayonet stab." And to-day the corset scarred veteran is occupying a lucrative place on Uncle Sam

Notice to Democrats.

Last day for being assessed and registered—Thursday, September 7th.

Last day for paying taxes—Saturday, October 7th.

Last day for being naturalized—Saturday, October 7th.

The Carbon county Democrats will hold their convention on the 4th of September.

On the 12th of September Gov. Hoyt will be in Easton to welcome the great council of Red Men on behalf of the State.

H. M. Seeley Esq. a prominent member of the Bar of Honesdale will probably be appointed Judge to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge C. P. Waller.

There are four candidates for state senate in this district. They are Hart of Lycoming, Bartz of Montour, Deegan of Sullivan, and McHenry of Columbia. The contest in the conference will be a warm one.

Only a few weeks ago Don Cameron threatened to turn free trader if the manufacturers of the State did not support his ticket. Now Simon Cameron comes to the front and says the Independent movement is in the interest of free trade. Can it be possible that Don contemplated joining the Indepen dents!

Mr. Simon Cameron's Statement that the Independent movement in Pennsylvania has been set on foot by the free traders will be found interesting by Mr. Wharton Barker, the high priest of the Independents and one of the most advanced and earnest of American protectionists. It is to be feared that toothache runs in the Cameron family.—N. Y. World.

About 150 pension certificates are transmitted daily. The average amount paid to each successful claimant under the arrears act is $1,200. Thus we have a daily drain on our treasury of about $180,000, or $1,000,000 a week. An additional force of 500 clerks will be at work soon, then it is expected that double the work will be done. This will make the yearly appropriation reach one hundred millions.

Circulars are being sent to soldiers in different sections of the country, by western parties, stating that for the sum of $10 one hundred and sixty acres of good land will be secured without the formality of occupying it for four years—less the time of service, as provided by law. The land commissioner at Washington states that the law remains unchanged, and that the circulars are for the purpose of deception. Soldiers will therefore take warning.

A dispatch to the Philadelphia Press from Bloomsburg says "that there are no Independents worthy of mention in this county." Last year Wolfe received 127 votes, though there was no organization, and no general distribution of his ticket. This year with an active committee and the influence of many leading Republicans who have tired of the Cameron yoke, the vote will be much larger than the sender of the dispatch will be pleased to hear of.

Forney's Progress, not a political journal, but first-class in society matters, has this to say of Pattison in a late issue: "If his youth is the most serious objection to the Democratic candidate for governor his opponents have a hard road to travel. Pattison has already filled important offices, and despite his youth so filled them as to make a record for honesty and ability which drew to his support men of all political faiths. If the present condition of American politics is due to the management of old men the sooner we try young ones the better. Pattison's enemies will have to fight him for other faults. No voter is afraid of him because he is young, and many like him for exactly that reason."

Money figured largely in the prohibition campaign in Iowa, being used lavishly in defraying the expenses of temperance orators and the cost of brass bands, halls for speaking, and the other features of an energetic canvass. The Treasurer's report at the recent Prohibitionist Convention figures up the entire outlay of the campaign at $336,180, of which all but $72,953 had been previously subscribed. The opponents of the Prohibition party appear to have been very niggardly or over-confident of success. The whole amount subscribed by them for a campaign fund did not exceed $12,000. They now regret their close-fistedness, and express the opinion that the vote on the Prohibition amendment might have been in their favor if they had been as free in their use of money as the temperance men.

The Democratic Congressional Conference for the Eleventh district will meet at Mauch Chunk September 6. The district embraces Pike, Monroe, Carbon, part of Lackawanna, part of Luzerne, Columbia and Montour counties. It is curiously shaped, and was made to dissipate the several thousand Democratic votes in this section so as to secure safe Republican districts adjacent. The very large Democratic majority incites Democratic ambition, and there are usually plenty of candidates and stubborn contests for the nomination. This year there will likely be six names before the convention to select a candidate from. Pike county will present Dr. A E. Lewis, Monroe will name John B. Storm, Lackawanna will probably instruct for J. M. C. Ranck and Luzerne will support J. A. Gorman while the Carbon county conferees will be uninstructed. Ex-Senator Buckalew is the choice of this county, and George W. Miles, of Montour. Columbia county urges her claim to the nomination on the ground that she has presented not only the ablest man in the district, but one of national reputation. To this she adds the fact that she has always rolled up a large vote for the Democratic ticket, Hancock's majority being over 2,300, and it has been thirty-five years since one of her citizens has represented her in Congress, and only one in seventy years. Lackawanna, Carbon, Montour, Monroe, Luzerne have all had Congressmen in recent years.

The nomination ought to be conceded to us without a contest, and the conference could do itself no greater credit than by nominating Mr. Buckalew unanimously on the first ballot.

Colored Independents.

The following call has been issued for a mass meeting of the colored voters of Philadelphia, to declare emancipation from Boss bondage, and the character of the men whose names are appended thereto gives the best assurance that the movement must largely divide the colored vote of that city:

EMANCIPATION FROM BOSSES.

We, the undersigned citizens of Philadelphia, fully awake to the demands upon our civil and political rights and appreciating the duty and requirements of freemen generally, with whom we have a common interest, and discerning the present attitude of parties in Pennsylvania, seeing the necessity of giving a manly expression publicly of our views and purposes bearing on the coming contest, do propose, in order to further this object, to hold a public meeting at Liberty Hall, Lombard street, below Eighth, Monday evening, September 4, 1882, to be addressed by eminent speakers in sympathy with the Independent Republican movement in Pennsylvania.

More Trouble for the Stalwarts.

The Stalwarts of the state are meeting with greater troubles than they anticipated in securing the endorsement of Cameron and the ring, through the success of their candidate, Beaver. The revolt of the white Independents has produced unexpected fruit, and the colored voter is coming to the front, vigorously demanding the right to vote as he pleases. Ever since the enfranchisement of the negro as a voter a few of the pretended leaders, who, if they have not more brains have more brass than the average colored voter, have assumed to direct and dictate how the entire colored vote shall be cast, and have gone so far as to demand and receive pay for their influence in controlling that vote. Tiring of being used as the marketable property of W. D. Forten, W. L. Nesbit and a few others who have captured the organization of the Equal Rights League, to run it for their individual advantage, the colored voters of Pittsburgh last week held a meeting to protest against the actions of these assumed leaders. Mr. Smith, colored candidate for jury commissioner, was the principal speaker, and denounced the way in which the State League is operated. The resolutions denounce "Forten, Nesbit and the entire machine," and declare that the "State League has made its last sale of the colored voters of Allegheny City to the bosses of Philadelphia." The colored voters of Wilkesbarre on Saturday last held a similar indignation meeting, and did not stop at denouncing the leaders who were making arrangements to sell their votes, bnt went farther and declared their intention to support the Independent Republican ticket, which they declare is the representative of the underlying principles of the Republican party.

In addition to the revolt among the colored men of Pittsburg and Wilkesbarre, a colored Pattison club was last week organized in Harrisburg with a membership of twenty-four, and a new paper called the Spectator, owned and edited by colored men, has made its appearance in Philadelphia, flying at its mast the entire Independent ticket. The Spectator is said to be backed financially by Robert Purvis and James Stills, two of the most influential colored men in the state. It is particularly bitter against Forten, Nesbit, Casey & Co., whom it charges with money by the sale of the colored vote at every election.

Mr. Cooper will need to be looking closely along his lines, for when there is trouble in the colored ranks there is good cause for uneasiness in the camp of the bosses.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

The Assessment Robbery.

Partisan interference in the popular elections, whether of State officers or of officers of the (Federal) Government, and for whomsoever and against whomsoever it may be exercised, or the payment of any contribution or assessment on salaries or official compensation for party or election purposes, will be regarded by him (the President) as cause for removal.—[Secretary Webster's Letter, March 10, 1841.

FIRST. That we unequivocally condemn the use of patronage to support personal political ends and require that all offices bestowed within the party shall be upon the sole basis of fitness.

FIFTH. That we condemn compulsory assessments for political purposes and proscription for failure to respond either to such assessments or to requests for voluntary contributions, and that any policy of political proscription is unjust and calculated to disturb party harmony.—[Stalwart Republican State Platform.

THIRD. We denounce the system which makes patronage and spoils out of the public offices; we denounce the practice of giving them to political managers for use in advancing personal political ends; we denounce the removal of faithful and competent officers, in the absence of a public reason; we denounce the practice of levying assessments and demanding contributions, for party use, from public officers; we denounce, severally and collectively, the evils and corruptions which accompany the government as a spoil system, and which are inseparable from such a method of administration; and we denounce the system of boss rule and machine control, which, when tamely endured, makes leaders autocrats and reduces the mass of the citizenship into political bondage. [Independent Republican State Platform.

The attention of General Beaver, candidate for Governor; Senator Cameron, confessed leader of the machine forces, and Chairman Cooper, Field Marshal of the Stalwart organization, to the foregoing public deliverances on the robbery of officers and dependents to debauch elections.

General Beaver speaks often, very often indeed, quite too often for his own advantage before the multitude, but the important planks of his own platform against the perversion of patronage and the assessment robbery, have thus far been entirely unnoticed by him. Even the Grangers would have heard him gladly on those points, and the people generally are most anxious for an expression from him on what they regard as among the most vital issues of the contest. Won't General Beaver get down to bed-rock common sense one of these days, and talk about the real issues of the battle.—Phila. Times.

The discovery of a vein of coal near Sioux City, Iowa, may not seem an important matter to people in this neighborhood, but to those in that section, where coal of the bituminous class will range from seven to nine dollars per ton, and anthracite commands as high as twenty-five dollars, it is just probable that the find is one of considerable significance.

The Independent Republicans claim 3,000 votes in Bradford county.

A permanent restoriation of exhausted and worn-out functions follow the use of Brown's Iron Bitters.

Candidate Stewart and Candidate Beaver did not meet at the grangers' picnic on Thursday. Candidate Beaver fled when no man pursued, and Candidate Stewart did not arrive. But Candidate Stewart does not propose to let Candidate Beaver escape. He calculates on catching him in Somerset county in a week or two.

The swindler McNarra of whom we spoke a few weeks ago, and who is now in jail at Easton, trembled violently when saluted by the name of Saller by Justice Fredrick, who visited him in his cell in the county prison. The swindler denied all claim to the name, nevertheless the authorities believe that he is the original of the picture sent by a woman in Philadelphia, claiming to be his wife. Justice Fredrick has written to the woman, giving a description of the man McNarra, and has asked her to visit the county jail to identify him.

James H. Verry, a young married man from Bloomsburg who was employed on the N. & W. B. Ry. at Nanticoke, succeeded in passing himself off as a bashful young man and was turning the heads of several Nanticoke maidens. Remember the place to buy cheap in groceries and queensware is at F. S. Kinport's.

A new swindling dodge is going on in some of the eastern counties of Pennsylvania. Two well-dressed scamps visit farmers and other, selling cloths, cassimeres and shawls, almost for nothing, in amounts from $20 to $50, taking negotiable notes in preference to cash. They say that a firm has failed in Canada and that the goods were smuggled into this country without paying any duty on them, hence they can afford to sell them cheap. Next sharper No. 2 comes along and demands the goods, saying they were stolen, and at other places presenting notes that had been raised from $25 to $250. Quite a number of farmers have been caught.

Given Away.

A valuable stylographic pen is given away with every quart bottle of Caw's ink sold at the COLUMBIAN store. The ink is the best quality, and sells at $1.00 a quart. Call soon and secure a bargain.

The N. & W. B. Railroad.

The North and West Branch Railroad, is now completed from Catawissa to Nanticoke, and yesterday the connection with the Central Railroad of New Jersey was made at the latter place. It is understood that trains will be run over the road on Monday next. For some time to come nothing but coal trains will be run on the road, but before very long, the line will be open for passenger traffic. It was the original design of the company to establish the terminus at Nanticoke, and not to open direct communication with this city for a year or two. It is said that it is due to Mr. Charles Parrish that the road will be run at once into Wilkes Barre. It is also rumored that the machine shops of the company will be established here.—Wilkes Barre Record.

Philadelphia Letter.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29, 1882.

It is now beyond doubt that we are going to have a great boom this fall in every kind of legitimate business. The summer holidays are practically over, and merchants returning to their traffic in the city find multitudes of buyers in town from the West, and orders by mail coming for immense quantities of goods. The country merchants are in good shape for making large purchases. Those who cannot buy exclusively for cash are doing a good business on short credits. There is no danger of a return to the old fashioned system of indefinite credits and frequent removals. The great demand in the business of the present day is for cash traffic, or something as near to cash as possible. Experience has proved this to be best, both for buyer and seller.

Anyhow, there is plenty of money in the land. The history of this season's summering shows it. While a few of the more extortionate hotels at summer resorts have fared poorly, the majority have had full houses at paying rates. Some of these concerns have made fortunes. There never has been a season since the war times when people seemed to have so much money to spend. The money is not thrown about in profligate style which characterized the war summers, but people who have it, spend it freely. Yet in almost every case trying to get a fair equivalent for it. There has been a good deal of display in dress, jewelry and equipage; yet very little of the flaunting and profuse extravagance which prevailed in the days when such men as Jim Fisk and Helmbold were considered by many the proper sort of models to follow.

In State affairs the competition between the parties and their divided branches will turn such a flood of light on public prodigality and official corruption that the inevitable tendency will be to economy and purity. As for the promises of the professional reformers they do not amount to much one way or the other. The men who make them generally want office about as badly as other men, and are neither more nor less fit for it.

Now that many of our Philadelphia ladies are returning home, the subject of house decoration is one which is naturally uppermost in the feminine mind. There is no city in which more good judgment and refined taste are expended on the adornment of homes than we find in Philadelphia. New York may have more costly homes and more showy decorations, but for real beauty, harmony and cozy comfort, give us a model Philadelphia home. There is a very commendable feature of home talent which makes the most of comparatively inexpensive materials. This is particularly noted in regard to window hangings, some of which are of cheese-cloth with pretty trimmings. Madras muslin has come into favor for windows. It shows tinted figures, and produces an effect somewhat akin to that of stained glass. There are many cotton fabrics in gay and striking patterns, some of them with grounds of æsthetic hues, liberally covered with rich varieties of peculiar flowers and figures. Those who desire something more expensive, can satisfy their fancy in raw silk tapestries, some of which run high into the fancy figures. Japanese designs are much admired both in these and in the satin cretonnes which are increasingly popular.

There are novel fashions in decorated bed-coverings. Antique lace spreads are laid over rich colored satin quilts. The pillow shams are of lace, to match the spreads. An important set of lace bed-spread and pillow shams recently sold for $1,000. Of course nobody is expected to lay his head on such pillow-shams or to wrap himself in such a bed-cover. Beautiful coverings are made of Russian Grenadine, ornamented in open work. Chintz figured coverlets with showy patterns and sunflower borders are just now in favor, but are too "loud" to become permanently popular.

MANTEL DECORATIONS.

Much attention is now given to tasteful decorative articles for mantels. Of these we find at Baily Banks & Biddle's a great variety, selected with great care and in admirable taste. Among these may be mentioned the "clocks and clock-sets," composed of a clock for the centre with pieces of statuary in bronze for the ends of the mantel. These clocks are in endless variety, and are not merely for ornament, but are of superior workmanship and excellent timekeepers. Besides the bronze decorations in enamel, besque, and the various descriptions of fine porcelain. These have clocks to match. Then there is the "concealed stem winder" which has achieved wonderful success as the most popular clock, as well as the most valuable of the day. These clocks and sets cover a wide range of fancy and price, many of them being suited to the wants of those who have but limited sums to invest in decoration.

Oscar Wilde is taking a tour among the watering places with his lecture. At Long Beach he gathered a crowd of 150. At Spring Lake he was announced on Wednesday as a bathing attraction on the beach. As he did not come the bathing house keepers hung him in effigy to their high flag poles. The figure remained aloft during the bathing hours and was the cause of a great deal of fun among the crowds who thronged the beach.

The great glut of peaches which was predicted, has not yet made its appearance in the city. There is a reasonable plenty of the fruit, but as yet nothing like a prodigal supply. Good peaches command fair prices. Those which are offered cheap are mostly poor things.

Some sinful fellows performed a sharp trick at Atlantic City on the bathing house man and his customers. By means of false checks they possessed themselves of the jewelry, watches and other portable belongings of persons who were in the surf. These sly rascals had provided themselves with a full set of checks. They or their confederates would stand and inspect the bathers as they presented their goods for supposed safe-keeping. While the bathers were in the water the rascals would call with the checks, receive the valuables and carry them away. This had to be done quickly, of course, but in less than an hour, while one set of bathers were in the water, the harvest amounted to about six hundred dollars in money, jewelry and watches.

Lynn, Mass., always was a good place for health, but it has become a modern Bethesda since Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of 233 Western Avenue, made her great discovery of the Vegetable Compound, or panacea for the principal ills that afflict the fair creation. This differs, however, from the ancient scene of marvelous cures in this important particular: The healing agent, with all its virtues, can be sent to order by express or mail all over the world.

"Magnificent promises sometimes end in paltry performances." A magnificent exception to this is found in Kidney-Wort which invariably performs even more cures than it promises. Here is a single instance: "Mother has recovered," wrote an Illinois girl to her Eastern relatives. "She took bitters for a long time but without any good. So when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box and it has completely cured her liver complaint."

VISIBLE IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was asthonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price $1.00.

Preparing the Soil for Wheat.

Fall wheat seeding is not so far distant that good farms can afford to defer attention to plane. There are so many considerations affecting profit in raising Winter wheat that one must be well acquainted with all the conditions or be subjected to losses quite too frequent to make the crop a pleasant one to contemplate. One of the chief requirements is the machanical fitting of the soil. It is of such great importance that it hardly ranks below the chief requirement. Even fertility is not more essential than mechanical preparation of the soil. It is true, land must have certain natural fitness for wheat to be used profitably for this crop, but this fitness is of no avail on lands, except when preparation is complete.

Winter wheat is a crop exceedingly fastidious in its demands. The soil may be heavy, or light, and yet capable of producing full crops, but haphazard, careless methods in preparation of land exceedingly favorable, rarely result satisfactorily. As to the soil nothing is better than clay loam, provided efficient drainage is had. Without drainage the risk of loss is so great that a prudent farmer will rarely attempt wheat raising under such a condition. Drainage may be natural through a porous subsoil as in alluvial lands, but if not so provided there must be artificial drains sufficient to meet every requirement. Of course, this kind of preparation cannot be made within the month or two proceeding the time for sowing seed. Heavy clay lands, well underdrained, after two or three years of such draining if duly supplied with the elements of growth may be excellent for wheat, but if not so drained the crop is very likely to be killed by the lifting process involved in the freezing and thawing of March and April. No amount of preparation of such lands will avail without drainage.

This provided, the next step is to reduce the soil to the finest tilth through frequent cultivation to bring requisite mechanical fitness. This is more easily affected with lands suitably drained because there is less liability to turn up clods, and if clods appear, they are so far disintegrated by the previous processes of drainage that they soon fall to pieces. Too much stress can not be placed upon what is properly styled mechanical fitness for the crop, this finding of the soil necessary to permit the thread-like roots to penetrate in search of nutriment and moisture and to remain always in close contract with the soil. It may be said of wheat especially that the roots abhor a vacuum. Beneath the surface there must be close, compact, yet fiine soil, or the roots will not get suitable developement and whatever abundant to supply, it will not be available, hence the necessity of giving great care to the fitting as the prime condition of success.

As to the manure there are many ways of applying it. Doubtless the best is to incorporate it with the soil, as for instance; if barnyard manure be used, it may be spread before the first plowing, to be turned in and afterwards thrown back to the surface and intermixed by every process of cultivation, so that the soil wherever reached by the roots shall respond to their demand. This is the best way, taking account of a series of years on a wheat farm, but not for immediate returns. In some instances where grass is regarded with even more favor than wheat, it may be always better to spread the manure on the surface just previous to sowing the seed. The advantages of this course are, first: the decent of soluble portions into the soil through the rains that follow, thus giving much the same result as when the manure is incorporated. Second; that grass seed subsequently sown, may have nourishment and vigorous growth earlier in the season than when the manure is worked into the soil by the plow. In this view, the grass crop constituting the basis of all grain farming, surface applications may be counted as more profitable than turning the manure in by the plow. The former is preferable when the manure is mixed with course stuff, the waste of the stables, unrotted, where the substance is used on heavy soils. The machanical effect in such a case is admirable, the coarse manure loosens the soil, and thereby brings a degree of fitness not otherwise attainable, not even by extended cultivation. Those who use commercial fertilizers find the greatest advantage in using them with barnyard manure, but in all cases on the surface to be worked in by the harrow or drill. Whatever method be adopted in regard to the use of manure, the neccessity remains to work the soil to proper tilth in order that the seed bed may have the fineness required.—Husbandmen.

Experiments in Feeding Cattle.

The superintendent of the model farm at Guelph, Canada, gives as below the results of some experiments made there in feeding cattle.

A steady, frosty winter is better than an open one in feeding cattle.

An average two or three year old steer will eat its own weight of different materials in two weeks.

Two or three year old cattle will add one-third of a pound more per day to their weight upon prepared hay and roots than upon the same material unprepared.

It is thirty per cent. more profitable to premature and dispose of fattening cattle at two years old than to keep them up to three years.

There is no loss in feeding cattle well upon a variety of materials for the sake of manure alone.

Farmyard manure from well-fed cattle, three years old, is worth an average of $2.30 per ton.

A three-year-old beast, well fed, will give at least one ton of manure every month of winter.

No cattle beast whatever will pay for the direct increase to its weight from the consumption of any kind or quantity of food.

On an average it costs twelve cents for every additional pound of flesh added to the weight of a two or three year old fattening steer.

In Canada the market value of store cattle can be increased thirty-six per cent. during six months of finishing by good feeding.

In order to secure a safe profit, no store cattle beast, well done to, can be sold less than 4½ cents per pound, live weight.

In the fattening of weathers, to finish at sheering, the Cotswold and Leicester grades can be made up to 200 pounds, the Oxford Down 180 pounds, and the Southdown (grade) 160 pounds each, live weight.

A cow wintered upon two tons and a half of hay will produce not far from five tons of manure, provided that she be well littered and none of the excrements be wasted.

Orchards where fowls are allowed to run are the most profitable when gathering time comes. It is a mistake to think that birds, chickens and turkeys prove a damage when given a free pass into the fields.

Literary Work and Tobacco.

In response to a circular recently sent out by Mr. Arthur Reade, who has been collecting information as to the habits of literary men in regard to stimulants, the Abbe Moigno gives an interesting and characteristic record of his experiences. The letter appearing in this paper, Les Mondes, states that he had published 150 volumes, small and great; that he scarcely ever leaves his work table and never takes walking exercise; yet he never has a trace of headache, or brain-weariness, or constipation, or any form of urinary trouble, &c He never has recourse for his work to stimulants, coffee, alcohol, tobacco, &c., a statement which the sequel shows to need qualification. Snuff-taking he has sometimes practised, but he vigorously condemns it. He has learned twelve foreign languages by a method of his own, and with regard to his acquirements in philology and chronology, he says. "I was one of the most extraordinary personalities of my time, and Francois Arago sometimes laughingly threatened to have me burnt as a sorcerer." On one occasion, when in Munich for a few weeks and spending his evenings with Bavarian servants, who each smoked four or five cigars and drank two or three pots of beer daily (Steinheil, the most illustrious, boasted of smoking 6,000 a year), the Abbe came to smoke three or four cigars a day. He had also anew taken to snuff, so that, when preparing his calculus of variations, a very difficult mathematical work, he would empty his snuff box (which held 25 grammes) in a day But one day he was surprised to find himself painfully unable to recall the meaning of foreign words and remember dates with which he had been familiar. Thereupon he formed a heroic resolution, and since August 31, 1863, when he smoked three cigars and took 25 centimes worth of snuff, he has, up to the 25th of June, 1882, touched neither. This was for him a complete resurrection, not only of memory, but of general health and well-being; he has had indefinite capacity of work, unconscious digestion, perfect assimilation of food (of which he can take more), &c. For the rest he mentions that he takes a small cup of black coffee in the morning and when all but two or three spoonfuls has been drunk he adds a small spoonful of brandy or other alcoholic liquor. This is his ration of stimulants. He goes to bed about 9 and rises at 5, "full of vigor." The Abbe is over eighty.

Red Spider on Fruit Trees and Hedges.

Among the insect enemies of the fruit grower it is singular that no one has referred much to the red spider. It is a small enemy, to be sure, but one by no means to be despised. It makes up by its immense number for its diminutive appearance. They appear larger than those we find in greenhouses on roses, fuchias and other tender plants; but whether or not they are different species to these, are natives to the soil, or are introductions from some other parts, are questions which may, perhaps, interest the entomologist, but will hardly aid in the destruction of the foe

We suppose on large trees the labor would be too great to attempt any means for their eradication, but for young trees and evergreen hedges in general, which are easily reached, it might be well worth while to try to keep them down. The popular receipt in garden books is to mix flour of sulphur in greasy water and then syringe with it, of course keeping the mouth of the syringe near the surface of the water while drawing up the liquid, as the oily and sulphury water floats only on the top, and is drawn into the syringe only in that way. This greasy liquid causes the sulphur to adhere to the leaves, and it is said the red spider adandons these leaves in disgust.

The hot dry atmosphere of our country is peculiarly favorable to the existence of the red spider; and when we know how great a pest it is to the fruit-growers under glass, it seems to us well worth looking after when it undertakes to fasten on our fruit trees in the open air.—[Germantown Telegraph.

Queer Temperance Laws.

Russia has made the following curious efforts to regulate the liquor traffic: There is to be only one liquor shop in a village, and where two or three villages are almost contiguous, the one shop must suffice for their combined inhabitants The publican must be a native of the village, must be appointed and paid by the common council, and must sell food as well as liquor. If he allows any person to get drunk, he is liable not only to dismissal, but to fine and imprisonment. If any Russian village is reported to the authorities to be addicted to drunkenness, the sale of liquor may be interdicted for as long a period as may seem neccessary.

The queen of Madagascar has ordered the framing of a prohibitory law in her dominions "fobridding the manufacture or importation into her territories of alcoholic liquors A breach of this ordinance will entail the forfeiture of ten oxen and ten dollars fine. If the penalty cannot be paid by any offender, it must be worked out at the rate of ninepence per day."

Hop Bitters.

Are the Purest and Best Bitters ever made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion,—the oldest, best and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "Invalid's Friend and hope," and no person or family should be without it. (s)

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The accompanying is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," because of her correspondents love to call her, she is entirely devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily comes in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at relief from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1, per bottle or six for $5, and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as an abundant testimonial will show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Philadelphia, Pa. (s) Mrs. A. M. D.

Back Ache

POSITIVELY CURED BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.
